The Corky McMillin Companies withdraws from the Alameda Point Master Developer Selection Process

January 17, 2007 (Alameda, Calif.) The Corky McMillin Companies, one of the five master developer teams who responded to the Alameda Point RFQ, has withdrawn from the selection process. In a letter to David Brandt, Assistant City Manager; Walter Heiberg, Senior Vice President of The Corky McMillin Companies, stated, "After a thorough investigation of project specific factors and a careful consideration of all known facts concerning the project, McMillin has concluded that our expertise, experience and resources would be best utilized on other opportunities at this time. "

McMillan's withdrawal precedes the Community Open House scheduled on Tuesday, January 23, 2007 at the Mastick Senior Center. The four remaining teams, Catellus, Lennar, SunCal, and UWI will make formal presentations to the ARRA Board at its regular meeting on Wednesday, February 7, 2007 in Council Chambers, City Hall.
